Resentment Smoulders In Undergraduate Ranks At Varsity As Editor Resigns

Feeling Runs High at Suspension of Varsity Editor-in-Chief — Resignation Effective in Two Weeks — Student Reporters Plan to Picket University Press if New Editor Retained — Last-minute News Reveals Momentary Lull With Hostilities Expected

CULMINATING a sensational misunderstanding between the Varsity, undergraduate newspaper at Toronto University, and the Student's Administrative Council, late yesterday afternoon the suspension of Arthur C. Cochrane, student editor-in-chief of the Varsity, was made public by Elliot Auger, Commissioner of Publications, in a brief announcement. The announcement followed close on the heels of Cochrane's resignation on October 31st when his editorial policy failed to please the members of the Students Administrative Council. The resignation is effective in two weeks.

Replacing Cochrane as editor-in-chief is Martin B. Loeb, who will be in charge of the paper temporarily, his term being tentatively placed at two weeks. Latest indications are that the staff of the Varsity as a whole will rebel against the retention of Loeb, and will picket the university press, if he is retained after the two week limit. Last night's issue of the Varsity was put out by the regular staff, an undercurrent of dissension being apparent.

A meeting of the reportorial staff of the Varsity was held yesterday afternoon, at which seventy-five reporters assented to strike if their wishes are not heeded. Meanwhile tension is felt on the campus.

Too-Outspoken Editorials

Cochrane based his resignation on the fact that the editorial restrictions were too great, while a statement by the Students' Administrative Council indicates that the former editor-in-chief exceeded the bounds of editorial convention. Commentators point to the fact that the Varsity has recently carried editorials dealing with the Ontario beverage rooms question, and making rather "ardent" in Ontario politics. It may be stated that the Varsity is under the supervision of the Commissioner of Publications, who

Kingston Excursion

Tomorrow morning a special train will leave Bonaventure Station at 9.30 a.m. for Kingston. The train will leave Kingston the same evening and will thus afford students an excellent opportunity of seeing the rugby game between Queen's and McGill. If they so desire, those who are making the trip may remain in Kingston until Sunday or Monday before returning to Montreal.

The price for this special excursion is $3.50. This figure includes the return trip as well as the journey to the Ontario city. It is necessary, however, to guarantee that one hundred students make the trip, if the special price is to hold. Therefore those intending to make the trip are asked to hand their names in at the Athletic Office today. All arrangements can be completed and the tickets bought at the Athletic Office.

It has been announced that a dining car will be attached to the train, thus giving students an opportunity to give vent to their pangs of hunger en route. The English Rugby squad will also travel by this same train in order to tackle their rivals in Kingston.

Teutons Stage Play

By an unfortunate error, the production of the German play, "Die Deutscher Kleinstadter," was attributed in yesterday's issue to the "Germania" Club. As is common knowledge, this play is being put on by the German Department of McGill University, under the personal direction of Dr. Walter. The Germania Club proposes to hold a masquerade right after the play, at which German costumes will be worn. The suggestion made at the meeting of the Germania Club was that a list of members should be sent to Dr. Walter to obtain the required number of invitations for the play.

Woman Lecturer

This Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock Mrs. Skeffington will deliver a lecture on the subject, "Ireland: Whither Bound."

Mrs. Skeffington, Editor of the "Irish Citizen," and Assistant Editor of the "Republic," is undoubtedly one of the most colourful and outstanding women now living in the Irish Free State. In addition she has the reputation of being a brilliant platform speaker.

Special Reductions Made To Students By Several Firms

Substantial savings are made available to students by several Montreal firms under the plan announced last night by the Students' Council. Identification cards, which go on sale this morning by the janitors of the principal campus buildings and the members of the Council, cost $1.00 and entitle students to reductions at the Mount Royal Hotel, Krausmann's Lorraine Cafe, the St. Lawrence Laundry, Simpson's — for Spalding's Sporting Goods, Bennett's Barber Shop, and the Vogue-Hat Shop.

This plan is similar to those which have flourished on the campus for the past two years under the names of "Students' Co-operative Society" or

Debaters Proceed With Preparations

Proceeding with plans for the coming debate with Oxford-Cambridge, the executive of the McGill Debating Union announces that the judges for that event will be Mr. Justice Fabre, Surveyor of the Superior Court, Venerable Archdeacon Gower-Rees, rector of St. George's Church, and A. D. P. Heeney, local lawyer. The debate is to be held in Moyss Hall next Monday night, and will commence at 8.15 sharp.

The Oxford-Cambridge team, which has just been defeated in the Marl-times, will oppose a McGill team consisting of Melbourne Doig and Philip Vineberg, veteran debaters. According to report from the debaters, the local team is shaping well and is completing its arguments, upholding the affirmative of "Resolved that Liberalism, though it yet speaketh, is dead."

The sale of tickets, the members of the Debating Union in charge of that feature of the debate report, is good to date, and the price of twenty-five cents admission, it is pointed out, is to be used as a guarantee. The debate is being held under the auspices of the McGill Debating Union, and in co-operation with the National Federation of Canadian University Students. This is the third time that McGill will have met debaters from Oxford-Cambridge, and further engagements, the executive states, depend on the success of the debate Monday.

Interne Recipient Of Valued I.O.D.E. War Scholarship

It has recently been announced that Dr. W. H. P. Hill, an interne in the Royal Victoria Hospital, is the recipient of the I.O.D.E. War Memorial Scholarship for this year. Dr. Hill came second in the graduating class in 1934 of the Medical School at McGill University. The scholarship has a value of $1,400 and is tenable for one year. Dr. Hill will leave for England next autumn, where he will study at London University. During his sojourn, he will specialize in General Medical Practice and Medical Economics.

Dr. Hill is the son of the late Dr. Harry Hill, who was overseas during the Great War with the No. 3 General Hospital of McGill as a Major. He is the grandson of the Rev. Edgar Hill.

The war memorial will be awarded in perpetuity in each province of the dominion. The idea is to foster imperial relations with the Mother Country.

Charades Enacted By French Society

A novel entertainment was presented yesterday afternoon in the R.V.C. Common Room by the Societe Francaise in the form of charades. Members of each year presented a series of scenes, enacting a word of two or three syllables. Prizes for guessing the correct word were won by fourth and second years, the prize being a box of chocolates in each case.

Marthe Michaud, president of the Societe, was in the chair, she opened the meeting with a short introductory speech, in which she advised the members that the purpose of the Societe was the attainment of ease and fluency in the French tongue. Marguerite DuBois, secretary-treasurer, read the minutes.

The first charade presented by fourth year, whose amusing skit represented the word, "Jeu," was "boute," and "chansonnette." Mlle. Henri and Mme. Furness, who directed part of the songs which followed, were present, and the meeting was concluded in an informal manner with the serving of tea.

The next meeting of the society will be a joint one with the Delta Sigma and the Music Club, on November 29.

Civilization Faces Possible Cataclysm States Dr. Leacock

Forecasting the ultimate extinction of civilization unless a break is made away from politicians who encourage internationalist differences and the mass of society given complete control of their own destiny, Dr. Stephen Leacock sounded a solemn note in an otherwise humorous address before the Commercial Undergraduates' Society luncheon yesterday noon in the Union Grill. Guests of the Society were Dr. Tait, Professor Sugars, Professor Durand, Professor Villard, Professor Culliton and Dr. Day.

In referring to today's practice of after-dinner speaking with one's "face in a microphone" Dr. Leacock held it as typical of America inasmuch as it

Biologists Discuss Trend In Genetics

Professor Huskins will address the first meeting of the Biological Society on "Current Trends in Genetics." The lecture will be given in the main hall of the Biological Building at 8.15 next Tuesday evening. After the lecture there will be a general discussion in which all will be invited to participate.

Dr. Huskins is the honorary president of the Biological Society and head of the newly created department of Genetics. It is probable that there will be a large attendance as the lecturer is popular and has an enviable reputation in his field of work.

Genetics is a twentieth century science, comparatively speaking, and there have been many recent improvements in the technique of the research workers. Every day brings remarkable innovations.

Sociological Society To Convene Tonight

THE Sociological Society commences this year's activities tonight in the form of an address by Professor Hughes on the subject of "Racial Conflicts and Contacts in the Present-Day World." Professor Hughes intends to bring out the importance of this problem in relation to modern social conditions. In addition to the main address, an interesting list of topics for discussion has been prepared. The meeting is to take place in Strathcona Hall and is scheduled for 8 p.m.

Sonnette Ross, the secretary-treasurer of the Society, expects a large number of younger students to attend as well as former friends of the Club who are interested in the problems of modern society.

Frosh-Sophomore Debate Features Maccabean Rally

To Discuss Effects of War's Aftermath on Jewry

A MEETING of the Maccabean circle will be held on Sunday, November 4th, when the feature of the afternoon will be a Freshman-Sophomore debate. The subject of the debate is "Resolved that the aftermath of the World War is beneficial to world Jewry," the affirmative of which will be upheld by the sophomore team, and the negative by the Freshman debaters. The sophomore debaters are Pearl Jacobs and Sydney Freedman, while Ruth Cohen and Morton Godine are representing the Freshman class. Both Freedman and Godine are Bovey Shield winners, the former being last year's winner and the latter this year's holder of the trophy.

The judges will be Marcel Markus K.C., Harold Lande, past president of the Maccabean Circle not been as successful as previously. However, the campaign is not over yet and there is still time to give. The official closing of the Campaign is Monday night, and not Saturday as previously announced.

At a meeting of the Executive Committee yesterday noon it was decided that the individual students could hand in their contributions to Bill Gentlemen in the Arts Building and Mrs. Murray in the Royal Victoria College if they experience any difficulty in getting in touch with their class collectors.

Urges Co-operation

"The crisis has been reached," said the Chairman last night, "and unless the individual student makes a special effort to contribute, instead of waiting to be called upon, the campaign will fall at a time when the need is greatest and the charitable organizations are taxed to their limit."

The School for Graduate Nurses leads in the Interfaculty race with 92 per cent of their objective while the Faculty of Arts, the largest division in the University, lags in the rear with only 9 per cent. Tied for last place with Arts is Dentistry.

Engineering brings in largest cash total with something over $100,000. Only 24.8 per cent of the total objective of $2,000,000 has been collected and the remaining $1,500,000 is required before the campaign closes on Monday if the reputation of the Undergraduate Body is to be upheld.

Philosophers Enact Modern Symposium

Novel Meeting of Philosophical Society Held Last Night

The Symposium in which different speakers presented their views on life featured the meeting of the Philosophical Society last evening. The Critic, Biologist, Religious Thinker, Poet, Cynic and Aristocrat—all stoutly defended their respective positions. The discussion was based on G. Lowes Dickinson's Modern Symposium.

The meeting was opened by Beatrice Klineberg, who read a message from Mrs. Margaret Mackay, wife of the late Dean Ira A. Mackay. The statement expressed her thanks to the Society for its resolution of sympathy. The resignation of Morton Bloomfield, former president, was accepted, and the return of Betty Elliott to the executive was announced.

The Symposium was opened by the Professorial Circle, represented by Dr. Fulton. He dwelt upon the necessity of criticism of modern life, arguing that the destructive element of criticism was indispensable in the search for truth. "No field of human thought can escape the purifying fire of criticism,"

The Scientific point-of-view was then presented by Dr. Hendel, interpreting the role of the Biologist. The improvement of the species must form the basis for progress. Following him, the Cynic present among the assembly launched an attack against all schemes for human betterment. "All thought is useless," he characterizedly argued, "because it presupposes conditions which cannot be realized."

This point-of-view was fervently attacked by the Poetess, Betty Elliott. Life did contain much beauty and the study of the past should help us to appreciate the future. Next the Aristocrat, Laurence MacGregor, advocated an aristocratic form of government. He bitterly attacked democracy, which he said destroyed all cultural values. The Religious Thinker concluded the Symposium. Dr. MacLennan, this speaker, stated that individual betterment must form the basis for improvement in man. The meeting concluded with a vigorous discussion from the floor.

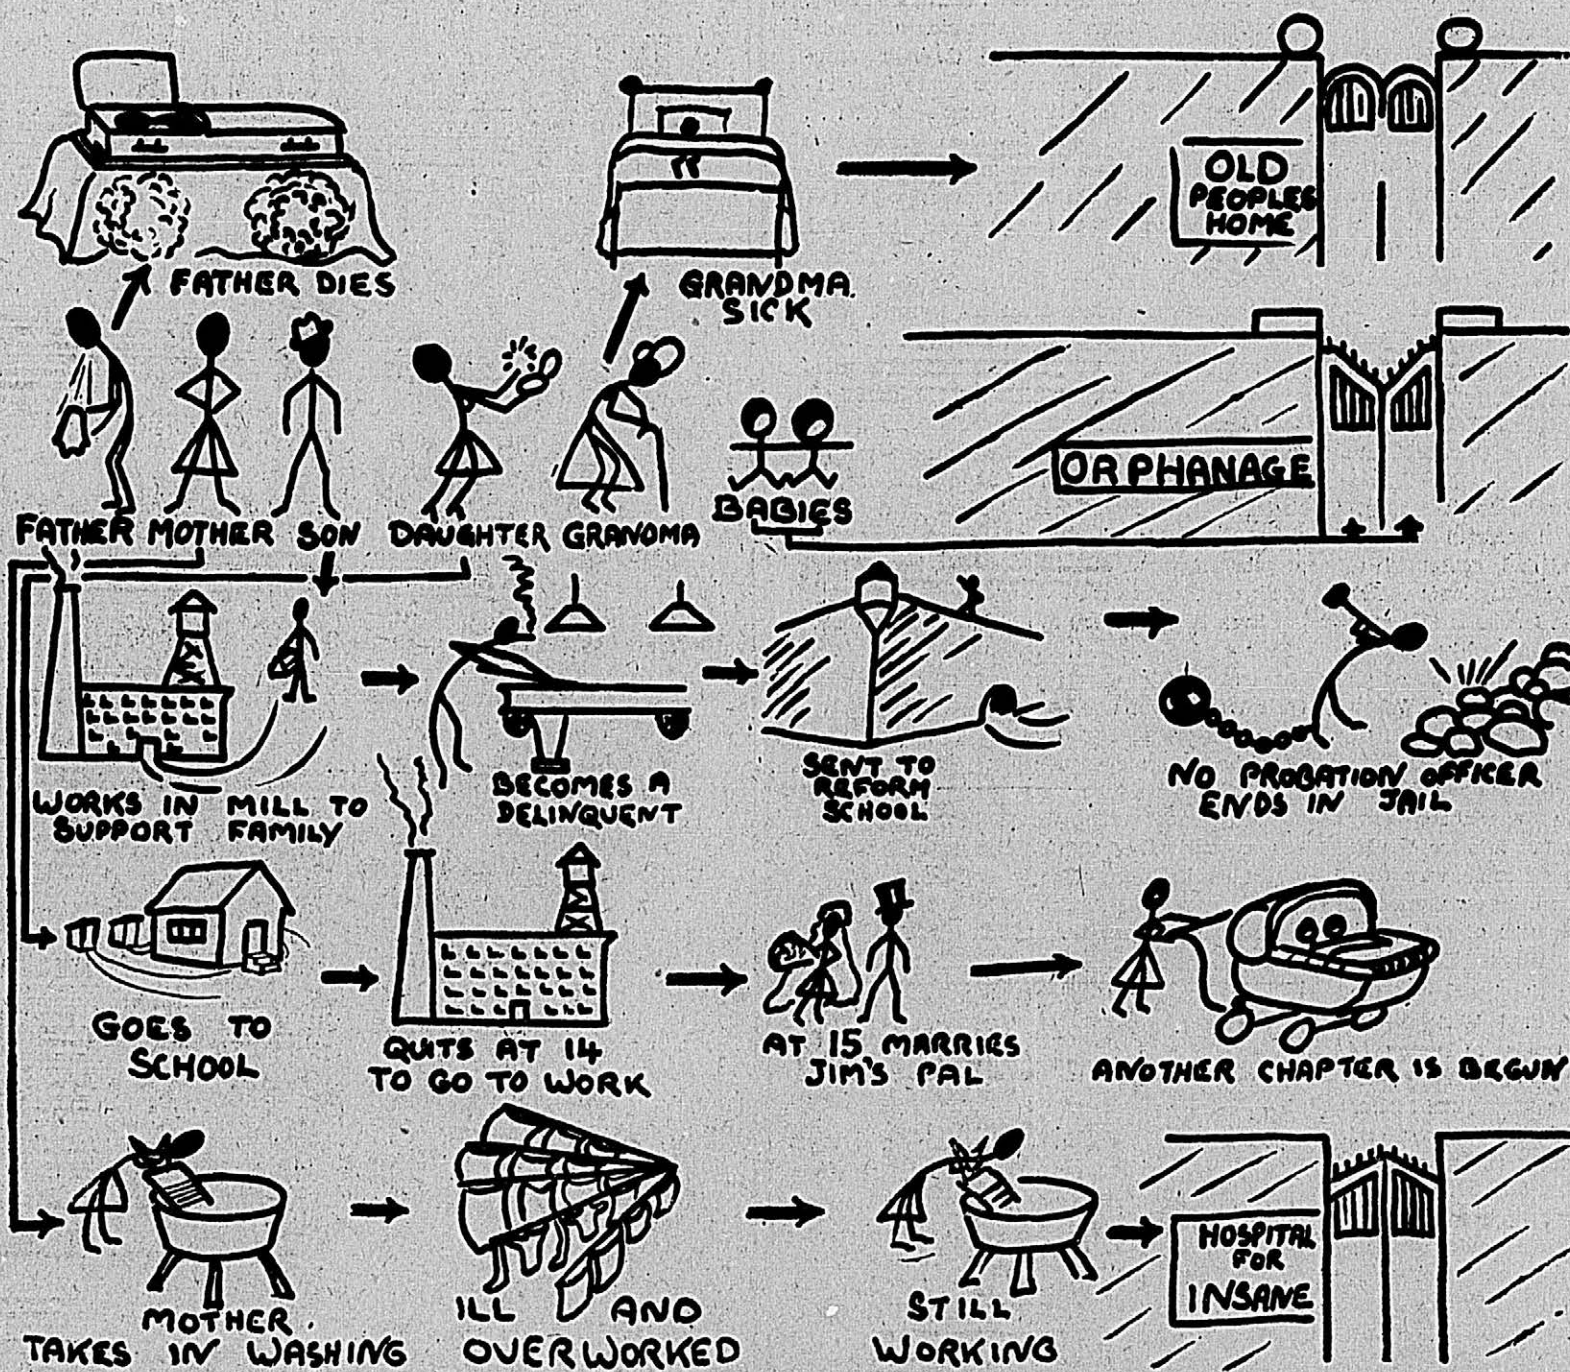

Illustrated Address

Dr. G. R. Lomer, librarian at McGill University will give an illustrated address to the Quebec Library Association at the Mechanics' Institute, Atwater avenue on Monday next at 8.30. His subject will be "Lewis Carroll."

Freedom Of The Press

ONCE again the freedom of the College press seems to be endangered in view of the recent occurrences at Varsity which have culminated in the resignation and dismissal of Arthur Cochrane, the Editor-in-Chief of the Varsity, the college newspaper. The trend of events there follows very closely the epic occurrences which happened at McGill two years ago, and which also were the direct outcome of a beer story.

The crux of the present trouble at Toronto centres about an editorial written on the proposed scheme for the sale of beer throughout the province, suggesting a referendum be taken on the matter; there was also a series of interviews, and opinions on the subject offered by many people prominent in different walks of life. The intention of the Editor was obviously to present the situation in a straightforward, and impartial manner, and as such it cannot be anything but heartily commended.

On what grounds the Students' Administrative Council acted, are by no means made clear in any of the dispatches we have received. Whether they objected to the fact that beer, articles dealing with it, etcetera are not fit material to be written about in a college newspaper; or whether they regarded the matter as one dealing in an unwarranted manner into provincial politics, is not specified.

Undoubtedly the S.A.C. has the power and may question any editorial policy of the Varsity. The fact that they have this power does not seem to us in any way to warrant a supervision of the Varsity policy ad infinitum. Should the S.A.C. disagree with the Editor and the Managing Board on a matter of policy, they may pass a resolution asking them to alter their policy, and if they decline to do so, then they may dismiss the Managing Board; subsequently they are then at liberty to appoint a board that will give effect to the policy they wish to be carried out. It is absolutely impossible to carry on a paper with any degree of success, interest, or satisfaction if every five minutes the S.A.C. or any other body, is going to poke its finger into every little thing.

Furthermore the S.A.C. seems to have acted in a high-handed manner entirely unwarranted by the circumstances. They declined to allow the publication of the resolution which they passed censuring the Editor-in-Chief; and furthermore they dismissed the Editor-in-Chief, when his resignation had already been placed in their hands. They have shrouded their actions with complete silence, in a manner that is hardly fair or sportsmanlike to the Managing Board.

We must hasten to add that we sincerely admire the cool-minded and tolerant stand adopted by the remaining members of the Varsity staff . . . if other parties had adopted a similar attitude in all probability the matter would never have arisen.

Seasoning

THE spell of inclement weather through which we are passing is most generally met with an attitude of extreme repugnance and annoyance. To the speculating mind, however, a more rational viewpoint becomes apparent after some observation and thought. For example, how many of us have stopped to consider that whereas today may feel raw and chilly a similar day in the dead of winter would be heralded with delight as a mild and welcome relief from the habitual cold. In short the seasons have been designed with a remarkable foresight, to so temper us that when the rigorous excesses of heat and cold prevail we are able to survive without intolerable discomfort.

Another instance drawn from the physical realm is the manner in which one may become accustomed to immersion in ice-cold water when a series of adaptation to varying degrees of temperature has been undergone. Such a process can be applied as an excellent parallel in the realm of the mind. While every waking moment is a part of our education, a university training can function in an especial manner as a kind of transitional period. Here it is that we are tempered for the life which we are to lead when we leave the sheltering walls of the university. The seasoning process is not all a bed of roses. Disappointments, failures and inconveniences beset the path and the journey may often seem to be interminable. Periods of gloom and depression are not uncommon and occasions may arise when one questions the ultimate propriety of the whole procedure. Analogous with seasonal moods which appear unreasonable, life sometimes throws up obstacles which are deemed unjust and bid fair to dishearten the wayfarer.

Then is the time to peer a little further ahead and console oneself with the thought that this is but an adjusting period, a period of trial. The real test lies further apace.

MUSIC

A First Symphony

IN THE last decade of the eighteenth century William Wordsworth and Samuel Coleridge were working together on a portentous book of verse. During these same years, away in Vienna, a young man in his twenties was learning to write music. Coincident with the publication of the 'Lyrical Ballads,' our young musician, who called himself Van Beethoven, sat down to write a symphony.

The form was at his disposal already. Everyone agreed that our musician's own teacher, who was known as 'Papa Haydn,' had brought the symphony to its highest possible perfection. An ordinary person would have seen little for it, but to concoct a series of agreeable tunes, work them out, and piece them together after Haydn's pattern. But Mr. Beethoven was not an ordinary person. We can see his penetrating eyes betray a twinkle, as he takes pen and paper in hand. He thinks of the pompous and polished Viennese critics, and their reverence for the proper and the polite. He chooses the key of C, as appropriate for a first attempt. But that characteristic twinkle brightens, as he jets down a loud discord in the key of F. By the third bar, he is in G; and a challenge is sounded to the 'century of concentration.'

What follows in Beethoven's first symphony shows little radical variation from the method of Haydn and Mozart, for it is not until his third symphony that our revolutionist really hits his stride. There are, nevertheless, sections in this first work which indicate an original conception of what a symphony can do. First of all, there is the opening introduction, which may sound rather tame nowadays and is not particularly well orchestrated, but which was the height of devilry in 1800. Then there are various little touches of instrumentation, such as allowing the drum to play solos in the middle of a stately slow movement. Most important of all is the slow movement which although labelled 'Minuetto,' sounds no more like an eighteenth century minuet than does the 'Rhapsody in Blue.' Years before the sage Papa Haydn had said, 'I wish someone would show us how to write a new minuet.' In this little number of his pupils he certainly got it. The finale opens with a brief passage which sounds like a baseball pitcher warming up. At the eighth bar he leaps at the theme, which starts off as fast as it can go.

This little symphony, the shortest of the nine, is a marvel of pep and cheery dash from start to finish. It would probably have remained a favourite even if Beethoven had died in 1800, which (and we are glad of it) he did not do. In spite of all that followed, the first symphony stands on its own merits, and as a fading echo of musical classicism. It is young and cheerful yet; indeed, it opens our symphonic season next Sunday evening.

The Orchestra Resumes

NEXT SUNDAY EVENING, at 9.00 p.m., in His Majesty's Theatre, the Montreal Orchestra opens its fifth season, and gives its 87th concert. The time of the concert has been changed from Sunday afternoons to Sunday evenings, in response to popular demand. The success of the change will soon be seen.

It is four years since a group of unemployed musicians gathered themselves together to earn a little much-needed money, and asked Dean Clarke to conduct them at a concert in the Orpheum Theatre. The concert was held; but more important than that for both the players and for Montreal, Mr. Clarke grew very interested in this spontaneously gathered group, and consented to become their permanent and honorary leader. The four years have passed, and Mr. Clarke is still with them. In spite of his duties as dean of the McGill Conservatorium, he has poured into the welding of the orchestra a tremendous amount of labour. When the news of the Orchestra's founding was first noised abroad, Leopold Stokowski is reported to have said that this was the most important musical step which had been taken in Canada for many years. Mr. Clarke undoubtedly felt this too, for he has stuck with the ship through some very thin times. We hope that this season brings many a full house to justify the faith and work of conductor, players and friends.

Sunday's concert brings us the honour of the first American appearance of Paul Wittgenstein. Next week Mr. Wittgenstein proceeds to Boston, to play with the Boston Symphony at the opening concert there. This pianist had the misfortune to lose an arm on the Russian front during the war, and then to go to Siberia as a prisoner on top of that. Fortunately, as he says himself, it was a right arm. There is a good deal of music written for the left hand alone, but Mr. Wittgenstein could find no worthwhile concertos. A few years ago, however, Maurice Ravel promised to write one for him, and did so in very short order. The result is said to be a remarkable composition, in that in it Ravel really lets himself go, and actually expresses a wealth of sentiment. Ravel has never been noted as a 'warm' composer, but rather as a well-disciplined thinker in tone. So the news that we are about to hear a Ravel of a new sort should arouse further interest in Sunday's programme.

The programme itself includes two 'memorial' items, by two composers whose recent deaths have left mournful gaps in modern music; namely,

Frederick Delius, and Gustav Holst.

Sunday's programme follows:

The Montreal Orchestra
SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 4TH, AT 9 P.M.
PAUL WITTGENSTEIN, Guest Artist
 The programme for the first concert of the fifth season of the Montreal Orchestra is as follows:
 March to the Scaffold BERLIOZ (1803-1869)
 Symphony No. 1 in C major, Op. 21 BEETHOVEN (1770-1827)
 PAUL WITTGENSTEIN—piano soloist (1875-)
INTERVAL
 A Somerset Rhapsody HOLST (1874-1934)
 On Hearing the First Cuckoo in Spring DELIUS (1863-)
 Carnival Overture DVORAK (1841-1904)

So much interest has been aroused by the appearance of Paul Wittgenstein with The Montreal Orchestra next Sunday night that there is likely to be a very large audience. If people would get their seats during the week the Box Office would be less congested on Sunday night and the annoying delay in seating the audience avoided.

Tickets are now on sale at His Majesty's Theatre and coupon-holders can have their coupons exchanged any time before the concert.

The Wednesday

Nine O'Clocks

On Wednesday, Nov. 7th, the first of this year's Wednesday 9 O'Clocks will be given in the Ballroom of the Ritz. This well-known series promises us some wonderful music this winter. There is a list of five recitals, to be held in the first or second week of every month. Next week's is a two piano concert by Etta Coles and Naomi Yanova. These two young artists are said to have mastered the difficult task of playing expressively together. It is not easy for two pianos to play together without a certain mechanical exactness and woodenness of technique. Their programme ranges from a Bach concerto to modern work.

Three more concerts are so far arranged by the 9 O'Clock management. In December comes Joseph Seigeti. Then follow Harold Bauer and the Hart House Quartet.

Theatre Advances

Princess Theatre

COMMENCING next Saturday the management will present as its main feature "Ohn Ohn Chow," starring George Robey, Anna May Wong, and Fritz Kortner. "Ohn Ohn Chow" ran at His Majesty's Theatre in London for 2,338 performances. It began its run on August 31, 1916, and "came off" on July 22, 1921. The nearest approach to that sensational record is "Charley's Aunt." The screen version is elaborately produced. George Robey will be seen as Ali Baba, Fritz Kortner will enact the character of Abu Hassan, and Anna May Wong will be seen as Zaharat, the slave girl. Also appearing in important roles are Pearl Argyle, J. C. Deane, Denis Hoey, Sidney Fairbrother, Laurence Hanray, Thelma Tuson, Kyohei Takase, Frank Cochrane and others. The added attraction will be "Cuckoo in the Nest," with Ralph Lynn and Tom Walls.

Civilization Faces

foreshadows the future. Recently returned from a lecture engagement in Chicago, the Canadian humorist observed what tremendous changes industry had wrought there in a scant century. But he confessed to a lurking suspicion that control had perhaps passed too far out of the hands of man and that civilization sways in the balance between extinction or further progress.

The United States leads the world in mechanical achievement, declared the speaker, and there the fate of civilization will be determined. Visible signs of this indeterminacy are to be seen in the wealth we cannot control and the power we cannot decide. Progress has probably led us to a displacement of society and the question arises, has it gone too far to render impossible the restoration of equilibrium.

A new brotherhood of men must arise which will share common problems and bridge gulfs between nations. Indications are that such achievements can best be brought about by mass rule. Our educational system is framed for the masses as are our motion picture films and books. Deprived of a just share in its administration, the masses have usurped a fierce part which we know as crime. Fifty per cent of our news today is of crime in one form or another—we see it, hear it and act it every day of our lives. Television promises to bring it right into our homes. "The gloating crowd at Newgate are not in it with us," declared Dr. Leacock.

Red Title Hopes Hinge On Tricolour Game Tomorrow

Kingston Weekend Mecca For Rabid McGill Rooters

Large Crowd Expected to Leave Tomorrow Morning — Squad Enroute Today at 3 — Past Week's Unfavourable Weather Hampered Practice Plans — Redmen in Fine Physical Shape For Fray — Queen's Reports Small But Determined Aggregation

HAMPERED somewhat by lack of practice due to unfavourable weather, yet full of confidence, a fighting Red Rugby team entrains for Kingston this afternoon where they will attempt to break a jinx which has held sway since 1928, and defeat Queen's University squad on their own gridiron. In the meantime, hoping to clinch a playoff berth, the Tricolour are preparing for their greatest fight of the season. A large crowd of fans is expected to accompany the Redmen westward.

McGill Intermediate And Frosh Gridmen Play Final Matches

Out to Break Supremacy of Respective League Leaders

SECONDS AT C.N.R.

WHILE their big brothers are busily engaged in Kingston, the McGill Intermediate and Freshman gridmen will also be chasing the elusive pigskin in other hunting grounds. The Intermediates take on C.N.R. at the latter's home grounds.

The Railroaders have already clinched the pennant in their league by virtue of three decisive victories over Eastward and McGill. The Frosh tangled up at Lennoxville with the Bishops squad, who have likewise clinched their circuit's ganfalon.

At Pointe St. Charles, Ralph St. Germain's squad will attempt to hand the C.N.R. team their first reverse of the season. Though out of the running for the league championship, the McGill Intermediates have been practising ardently the past week in preparation for tomorrow's encounter and since they will be on the trail of their first grid victory of the season, should present a formidable array in tomorrow's tilt.

Coach Dunc Anderson's Frosh will be out gunning for the victory that will lift them out of the cellar position where they are now reposing with the Loyola squad. The Freshmen scored their initial victory of the season last week when they took time out from their reveries to eke out a 7-6 victory over the Maroon aggregation.

RUGGER SQUAD TO KINGSTON IN LAST MATCH OF SEASON

THE McGill English Rugby team accompanies the football and soccer squads to Kingston tomorrow, where all three meet Tricolour opponents. The Ruggermen are less fortunate than their confreres in that they have already been eliminated from the intercollegiate race, having lost to Toronto here several weeks ago, while the Blues beat Queen's last week 15-0 to clinch the title.

However, their unflagging spirit should provide an interesting contest in the Limestone City when they hook up with the Tricolour XV.

There will be a final practice at the Stadium today, at 5 p.m. All players are urgently requested to attend. The team will leave for Kingston tomorrow morning at 9.30. The following men are asked to be on hand: Thompson, Harwood, Coreman, Paridge, Angell, Roman, Rabnett, Smith, Laing, Gilead, Scott, Munro, Williams, Scapleton, Hamilton, Savage, Duffus.

Freshmen Ushers

The following freshmen are expected to be on hand on Saturday to help with the ushering at the Montreal-Hamilton game. Please report to John Taylor, the Stadium Manager, by 1.30 p.m. at the Field House.

Annet, Lazarus, Vaughan, MacCallum, Beecher, Derby, Townsend, 1, Townsend 2, McGibbon, Anderson, Gilman, McDunn, Hartwick, Heron, Ruddick, Spearman, Frank, Bernofsky, Gibson, Reid, Conway, Ashkanaz, Fitch, McKay, Greenwood, Seltzer, Waters, Mendleson, Quadagni, Hendleman, Graves, Elliot, Fuller, Enwright, Barnard, Greenblatt, Walkely, Rattray, Renne, Arvin, Spellane, Doran, Gregson, Ein.

It is absolutely necessary that these men be on hand by 1.45 at the latest. Otherwise they will be refused admission.

Lewis and Bews, and all are sure to see action at some time or another. Arts '36 will hold the opening year dance of the term at 9 p.m. on Friday evening, November 9, at the Liberal Rooms. Bob Warrington's orchestra will be in attendance and favours will be distributed to the ladies. Tickets may be obtained from Bob Harvey, Bob Andrew, Bud Yuill, Bob Partridge, Ken Day, Marion Lyons, Dorel Smith, Arch Campbell, Whit Shannon and Elizabeth Cameron, conveners.

Bell Announces Hockey Line-up For Season Opener

The Editorial We . . .

By X. B. X.

IN THE final paragraph of a dispatch from Queen's, which appears elsewhere on this page, there is an announcement of a dance which is being staged by the class of Arts '36 of that university. At first glance, said paragraph would seem to be the sort which is marked (adv) and placed on page 26 along with Lydia E. Fynkham. Furthermore we have a feeling that the writer of the dispatch is a member of the class of Arts '36. Nevertheless we suggest that the announcement be taken in the spirit in which it is undoubtedly intended and that such McGill students as find themselves in the Limestone City next week put in an appearance at the brawl. It has been our experience that dances at Queen's have a flavour of their own which the local brew (or distillate, you call it) does not possess.

COACH BERT LIGHT'S calisthenic classes are commanding a steadily increasing popularity. For the benefit of the uninitiated may we say that each Tuesday and Thursday afternoon at 5.00 o'clock, the genial boxing mentor puts all interested through a series of kinks and stretches which are guaranteed to limber up the muscles and reduce the waistline. At the present time about 50 students are availing themselves of the opportunities afforded by this class, many of whom are not otherwise connected with the B.W. and F. squad.

AND WHILE we are on the subject may we call attention to the series of articles by the same Bert Light which is appearing weekly on this page. Coach Light has run a similar series for several years but this season, with a wealth of experience behind him and more time at his command he expects to outdo himself. These articles describe the fundamental principles of the art of self-defence and are well worth study, particularly by prospective clients of the date bureau.

COACH SHAUGHNESSY commends the spirit which impelled the Queen's Alma Mater Society to suspend five footballers for participation in an international fraternity. Having talked to the Red mentor on the subject we know that Shaq is not thinking of the effects of this action on McGill's chances. "They stuck to their convictions," he said and implied that many a university student society would have hesitated to take an action which would seriously jeopardize their team's chances in the midst of an important season.

SOCCERMEN POINT TO INTERCOLLEGIATE CROWN TOMORROW

zealous of McGill rugby fans who would unhesitatingly predict a Shaughnessy victory, on the other hand it would take the same kind of a rabid Queen's soccer addict to predict a win for his idols. Coach Hay Finlay's aggregation rules an overwhelming favourite to trim the daylighters out of the Limestone City eleven, by virtue of the latter's 7-0 defeat at the hands of Varsity last week and the previous loss of the same Toronto outfit to McGill here three weeks ago, 1-0.

If the Redmen win in Kingston tomorrow, they will clinch the championship, and the incentive should therefore spur them on to their best efforts, which ought to be plenty good enough to take the Tricolour men.

Badminton Club Reserves Union Ballroom Courts

Play Starts Tomorrow — Tuesday Evening Booked As Well

TOMORROW afternoon will see the start of play for the McGill Badminton Club. All new members are urged to turn out and get accustomed to the Union courts. In addition to Saturday afternoons, Tuesday evenings have been secured as well. This year a special concession has been made in that the Ballroom will be available to the club whenever it is not in use, which means additional playing time for the members at fairly frequent intervals. Although the floor has not been painted as yet, it will be ready for next Tuesday.

For those who have not availed themselves of the opportunity to join the club at the extremely low rate of $3.00 for the season, the executive announces that there is still time, if they get in touch as soon as possible with either John Mainwaring, MA. 4418, or Harry Lead, OL. 1728-J.

Membership cards will be issued next week to those who have joined the club.

McGill eleven held a strong Junior Association "All-Star" squad to a 1-1 draw. The game was evenly contested throughout, with the Redmen shading the opposition in the final twenty minutes of play.

McGill-Verdun Second Tilt On Feature Card

Royals and Canadiens Clash in Initial Match — Baptism of Fire For Redmen, Most Altered Squad in Circuit — McHugh, Meiklejohn, Hall, Lamb, Gordie Crutchfield and Duff to Start — Only Eleven Bellmen Scheduled to Play

WITH the announcement by Dr. Bobby Bell of his starting line-up for tomorrow night's opening hockey game, McGill puck prospects appear bright. The Redmen meet Cecil Hart's Verdun team in the nightcap of a doubleheader which features a Royals-Canadien clash as the opener.

Expect Good Fight

With these eleven men on hand, Coach Bell expects to give Hart and his Maple Leafs a good fight. Reports from the Verdun camp indicate that most of the stars who gave McGill such stiff opposition in last year's Senior Group play-offs will again be out with the Blueshirts tomorrow evening, including Bourcier, Ethier, and their great little goalie, Gerard Martel. Since each team can sign only fourteen men, Bobby Bell is keeping his other three places open until he gets a line on other likely candidates for the senior team.

The McGill-Verdun Hockey game tomorrow night will not be a home game for McGill supporters. Student coupons will, therefore, not be honoured.

Those forward combinations certainly strike one as having the stuff necessary to score goals. Lamb started out with the senior puck-chasers last year, and just as he was beginning to hit his stride, he left on a world cruise. However, Rollie hopes to go the full route this year. Gordie Crutchfield, younger brother of the famous Nels, was a regular right-winger on the Red senior team two years ago, but did not attend college last year. Duff was a junior star two years ago, but was also an absentee last season.

Second Line Good

The second line should be just about as good as the starting line, with Elie at centre. Jean-Paul started off as a right-winger last season, but was later moved back to the defence. Now he is back as a forward, and is expected to be a constant worry to opposing goalies. Morse, like Duff, played with the juniors a couple of seasons back, and was away from college last year. Crosby, a newcomer from the University of Saskatchewan, is considered a real asset to the team at the left wing berth.

Last season's strong defence bulwark is intact, with Gordie Meiklejohn and Alan "Daddy" Hall rarin' to go. The Wisconsin Whiz bears the double distinction this year of having been elected captain of both track and hockey squads, and opposing forwards will realize that he does not bear his honours lightly. Cliff Mackay was with Royals juniors last year, and is expected to prove a capable relief man. Hollie McHugh is reported to be tossing pucks aside with more coolness than ever this season, and should be in for a good year.

Not Home Game

Although this is not a McGill home game, and student coupons are, therefore, not valid, a good crowd of McGill supporters is expected to be on hand since there is no home football game tomorrow. Moreover, the scale of admission prices for these Senior Group games is very reasonable.

A general practice for all candidates for the intermediate and junior teams is called for tomorrow from 12 to 1 o'clock. A full turnout of all aspirants for places on these teams is asked for by the coach. The juniors will compete in the junior Q.A.H.A. league, while the seconds will play in the City and District League at the Mount Royal Arena, and in the Intermediate Intercollegiate League.

"Co-operative Plan," which were run by private individuals for their own profit. This year the Council has taken charge of securing these concessions for students and such profits as there may be will go to the treasury of the Students' Society. This is the only authorized concession plan at McGill.

Card Privilege
The privilege cards must be presented at the time of making purchase in order to obtain the reductions and identification must be furnished upon request. The cards are not transferable and may be confiscated if used by any person other than the one to whom they were sold. All concessions may be used as often as desired until May 15th next.

For the $1.00 spent in purchasing the card the following special rates and reductions may be obtained:

1. Mount Royal Hotel—Supper and a special supper menu for $3.00 per couple (on Saturday nights, $3.50). Tea and the dancing at the Saturday afternoon tea dances are also offered at $2.00 per couple.
2. Krausmann's Lorraine Cafe will give a 25 per cent discount on all meals, including the dinner and supper dances, except on Saturdays.
3. The St. Lawrence Laundry grants a 10 per cent discount on laundry, which should be of special interest to those living away from home.
4. Simpsons is giving a 20 per cent reduction on all Spalding Athletic Goods.
5. Bennett's Barber Shop in the University Tower Building will give 10 cents discount on haircuts and shampoos (each), 15 cents off on Fitch (dandruff remover) shampoos, and a free manicure.

6. And for members of R. V. C. the Vogue Hat Shop on McGill College Avenue makes available a 15 per cent discount on all ladies' hats.

Judging by their past popularity and the number of inquiries received already this year by members of the Students' Council and others, the privilege cards should have a good sale, and students are advised to secure theirs early. The price is $1.00 and they may be obtained now from: the Union Tuck Shop, Bill Gentleman, Harry Grimsdale, Charles Hort, Lorne Gales, Don Small, Bill Place, Mary Hamilton, Arnold Johnson, John Houghton, Gus Garcelon, John Hutchins, Phil Gitnick, Keith McKenzie, Wally Markham, and Deborah Barbour.

Graduates Unite
The first regular meeting of the Graduate Students Association will be held in the Union on Tuesday, November 6 at 8.30 p.m. Dean Eve, the Honorary President, will address the meeting. This talk will be followed by a short business meeting at which amendments to the constitution will be

Series Of Meetings Held By Fellowship

During the next week the Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship is planning to hold a series of meetings in Divinity Hall each night at 5.00 o'clock. The guest speaker for these meetings will be Mr. Stacey Woods, B.A., B.Th. the Dominion General-Secretary of the movement.

Mr. Woods is a native of Australia who after quite an extensive university and business career in his own country came to the United States. There he obtained the degrees of B.A. and B.Th. Wheaton College, Ill., and Evangelical Theological College, Dallas, Texas. Last year while working among young people in Winnipeg he was asked to take the place of the retiring secretary, Arthur Hill, M.D.

By his wide experience Mr. Woods is eminently fitted for work with young people and it is certain that his addresses will be inspiring to those who attend.

This will be the Fifth Annual Conference of the McGill Fellowship, the movement having been started on the campus some six or seven years ago for the purpose of witnessing to Christ as Saviour, Lord and God, and of showing Him to others.

The work is carried on by Bible Study Groups, two groups being held for men, one on Tuesdays at 2.00 p.m. and the other on Wednesday at 4.00 p.m. in the Committee Room of the Divinity Hall. The women's group is held in R.V.C. Room 105 at 3.00 p.m. every Thursday.

Daily Prayer Meetings in the Diocesan College Chapel at 1.30 p.m. are another feature of the programme as well as the annual conferences and occasional "squashes." It is also contemplated having meetings twice a month, this year at different houses to discuss student religious problems.

Refusing to retract his statements, and resigning in protest, Arthur C. Cochrane resigned the night before last. He was later suspended. Cochrane has had wide journalistic experience, both on downtown Toronto papers as well as on the Varsity. Joining the staff in 1928, he rose to Sports Editor under A. E. F. Allan. Appointed Associate-Editor in 1933, he took over the chief executive post last Christmas. He tendered his resignation last spring, but consented to resume his duties this fall, as a suitable successor could not be found. He was for four years university correspondent for the Toronto Globe. He is a third year

Masonic Club
The first meeting of the McGill University Masonic Club for this season will be held in the Grill Room of the Union on Tuesday, November 6, from 6 to 8 p.m.
Supper will be served as usual, after which there will be a short business meeting.
The guest speaker for the evening will be the Most Worthy Brother, Rev. Malcolm A. Campbell, D.D., Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Quebec. His subject will be, "Masonry, Source of Power."

Any new Masons at McGill will be heartily welcomed at this meeting. One of the chief aims of the club is to make it possible for members of the draft to know each other and to stimulate their interest in Freemasonry.

student in Theology at Knox College.

Cochrane's editorial last Wednesday, as a sample of his work, was entitled "Lenin or Christ." His successor, M. B. Loeb, was formerly an Associate-Editor.
